CRANBROOK

A bronze statue of a figure, possibly a deity or historical figure, standing on a large, stylized shell or rock formation. The figure is in a dynamic pose, with one arm raised and the other extended. The background is a dense forest of trees with vibrant autumn foliage in shades of orange, yellow, and red. The scene is framed by a yellow border with decorative corner elements.

CRANBROOK DONOR HONOR ROLL 2015-16

On behalf of the Board of Trustees of Cranbrook Educational Community and all of the learners and visitors who enjoy our campus and our programs at Cranbrook, in our region, and throughout the nation, I want to extend a warm thank you to the thousands of individuals and organizations listed in this 2015-2016 Cranbrook Donor Honor Roll and the many more who have volunteered their time, talent, ideas, and gifts to support this exceptional institution.

Cranbrook was founded by a visionary couple, George and Ellen Scripps Booth. As accomplished and forward thinking as they were, however, I am certain that they didn't begin their life's work with a fully-formed vision of what Cranbrook is today. Rather, Cranbrook grew and evolved organically, with various aspects of the Community springing to life as the need and the opportunity arose. What their experience illustrates is that with imagination, a great deal of hard work, and the enthusiasm and help of many, many others like you, one can realize something even greater than your original vision.

George Booth once said: "I would encourage the cultivation of the power of vision—look ahead, aim true—dare to do what no man has done before your day." Across the Community, Cranbrook's students, faculty, and staff try to live up to Booth's words in everything we do each day. Whether it is a new way of recycling that reduces food waste from our dining halls or an innovative curriculum change that incorporates many different learning techniques, the people at Cranbrook are embracing, sustaining, and stewarding the Booths' dream.

A prime example of innovation that reflects our time, is an exciting video of the Cranbrook campus filmed last summer by a recent Cranbrook Kingswood graduate using 21st century drone photographic and editing technology at which the Booths would surely have marveled. If you have not already done so, visit <https://vimeo.com/174960305> and enjoy a beautiful tour of an amazing realization of George and Ellen Booth's vision.

As you absorb the beauty of this special place from a new perspective while watching this video, please remember Cranbrook could not accomplish what it does without you. Thank you for all you do to make our continued inspiration and innovation possible.

Bruce D. Peterson
*Chairman

Dear Friends:

To those listed on the pages within, and to the many others unnamed, please accept our most profound thanks on behalf of the entire Cranbrook Educational Community. Your support has provided opportunities for so many to experience the joys of learning, imagining, creating, discovering, and above all, reaching for excellence. Cranbrook has always been about developing and encouraging the very best in us all. I am deeply grateful for your continued support and hope that each of you realizes the valued role you play through your support and friendship.

Cranbrook's Donor Honor Roll recognizes the individuals and organizations whose gifts make it possible to share all that Cranbrook embodies—dreaming the improbable, striving to achieve, and, through trial and error, making our world a better place. Rooted in our history, our Community develops skills for the 21st century in the form of innovation, creativity and curiosity. All of these themes flow across each of Cranbrook's Program Areas and this year they are the main backdrop of this publication.

As you look through this volume, I encourage you to pause on the messages of our Board Chair and the leaders in each of our Program Areas. In their words you will discover how Innovation—in many guises—is integral to the experience Cranbrook provides learners and visitors of all ages and backgrounds. I hope you will also take note of how each donation to Cranbrook is leveraged to further our capacity to make an even bigger difference in the lives of our students, visitors, and those who experience our outreach programs.

Innovation, creativity and curiosity are not separate entities at Cranbrook, but rather they are combined to encourage a new way to look at the world around us. These themes drive a new way of teaching a traditional course, as with the Blended Learning Approach to Math (BLAM) initiated in the Upper School and eventually into this year's Horizons-Upward Bound program; they were involved in the conversion of old spaces on campus such as the new Kingswood Café; they are also witnessed in the new websites for the Cranbrook Art Museum, Institute of Science and the House and Gardens. Unique and special events such as the Edible Landscapes dinners, for which the Center for Collections and Research is becoming so well known, are another terrific example.

Innovation, creativity, and curiosity are forward-thinking and empowering concepts. Through a commitment to harnessing and channeling these ideas, all of us at Cranbrook continually look to our Community's future needs and opportunities, work to map a thoughtful path to bring innovative solutions to life, and celebrate the fruition of these solutions while beginning the process anew.

My very personal thanks for being an important part of our Community and for supporting the lives of all who learn, work, discover and create here at Cranbrook!

BOOTH • $10,000,000

George Gough Booth and Ellen Scripps Booth
Maxine and Stuart Frankel

George and Ellen Booth founded Cranbrook in 1904 and guided its growth into one of the world's leading centers for education, science and art. The idea for Cranbrook arose, in part, of their belief that beauty was essential to life and could inspire great thinking and creativity. That belief still inspires the Cranbrook vision today.

SCRIPPS • $7,500,000

Susan Flint Cooper K'58

Ellen Booth's family, the Scripps, were leaders in the newspaper publishing industry at the turn of the 20th century. The Scripps family was the foundation upon which many of Cranbrook's early successes were built.

ACADEMY/MUSEUM

Innovation and creativity are what Cranbrook Academy of Art and its creative partner, Cranbrook Art Museum, are all about. Each day in the Academy's studios, our artists, architects, and designers are examining well-known objects or ideas in new ways; making traditional objects with new techniques or materials; or inventing new processes or functionality as never dreamt before. Every experience presented at the Museum offers a new vision of art, architecture and design, in a new context, with new works, and a new interpretive premise. At the Academy and Museum, empowering students and audiences to find context for the cutting edge of art, architecture, and design and to explore the boundaries of their own curiosity and creativity is our mission, our challenge, and our reward.

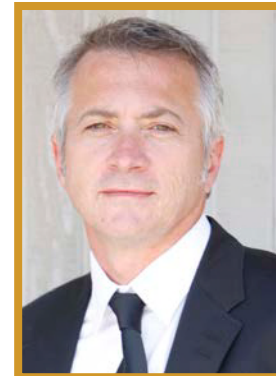

One example of innovation is a project co-conceived by Academy graduates Abigail Murray (Ceramics '05) and Kate Daughdrill (Print Media '11). Murray, through her architectural research collaborative Archolab, developed an idea that was executed at Daughdrill's Burnside Farm, an 8-lot urban farm on the east side of Detroit. The project is called Afterhouse Detroit, which transforms homes irreparably damaged by disuse and fire into semi-subterranean greenhouses that use the warmth of the earth and light of the sun to grow crops like mangoes and olives without the use of additional energy. The project is made possible through the use of bricks glazed and fired in Cranbrook's studios by Academy students. Afterhouse is an award-winning crowd-funded project that has plans to expand to other sites in the City of Detroit. http://www.architectmagazine.com/awards/r-d-awards/award-afterhouse_o.

Another example of the innovation and creativity for which Cranbrook is renowned can be found in the Art Museum's new website, www.cranbrookartmuseum.org. Working with the Troy-based firm, Media Genesis, the Museum's team, led by its new director Andrew Blauvelt, incorporated several exciting features into the site including a first-ever on-line gallery of some of the objects in the Museum's collections. In addition, the website has a rich compendium of past Museum exhibitions, with images, descriptions, and publications. Finally, there is an on-line store through which Museum catalogs and other publications are available. We are very proud of this user-friendly site and hope it will become a favorite online destination for you and many others in the community.

The innovation and creativity which are so much a part of the fabric of Cranbrook Academy of Art and Cranbrook Art Museum would not be possible without the support of the friends, members, and corporate and foundation funders listed on the following pages. All of us at the Academy and Museum—faculty, curators, students, and staff—join in extending our deep appreciation to those donors on behalf of the learners of all ages who explore and expand their personal innovation and creativity at Cranbrook every day.

INSTITUTE OF SCIENCE

At Cranbrook Institute of Science, we foster innovation and curiosity every day. Through our programs, the Institute brings hands-on science to some of the region's most underserved students through visits to the Institute, presentations in the classroom, and virtually via our Science on the Screen! program. Our educators provoke the "Wow!" and inspire the "How did that happen?" response in all of our learners, developing in them the skills to discover answers for themselves. These young 'scientists' are tomorrow's problem-solvers, explorers, and inventors. We also routinely develop new ways of teaching natural history, astronomy, and paleontology, and share those teaching techniques with Michigan teachers through in-house teacher training.

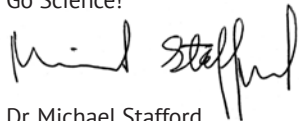

Developing new techniques is a natural extension of the scientific process which both draws from and contributes to greater feats of innovation, creativity and curiosity. The Institute's model for serving kids in urban settings continues to grow, and the Institute is now the largest supplemental science education provider to both the Detroit and Flint School districts. These outreach programs, combined with our traditional outreach programs, arguably make Cranbrook Institute of Science the largest provider, by quantity, of such services in the state.

The Institute's approach is holistic and moves beyond the traditional classroom experience to include teachers and parent participating in Science Days at the museum and in the communities we serve. Families are able to join in their children's education, and more importantly, the students are able to share what they have learned here with their families, in essence becoming teachers themselves. As part of the Family Days at the museum, we provide free transportation and admission—giving many a rare time opportunity to get out of the city, experience Cranbrook, and enjoy a multi-generational activity.

Our outreach goes beyond one day events. As an example, two years ago the Institute hosted twelve Flint high school interns who came daily to Cranbrook for two weeks to learn about the workings of a museum. As result of the success of that program we were able to bring fifty-six students here this past year for a two week immersion. During their internships, these young learners worked to create experiences and exhibitions which they unveiled to their families and the public during one of our Free First Fridays at the Institute. It was a wonderful celebration and an excellent example to observe the impact a science museum can make. I cannot think of a more exciting and appropriate way to close an academic year than seeing our mission come to life during this special evening of science at Cranbrook.

The impact the Institute makes through its programs and enlightening moments would not be possible without the generous investment of the individuals, corporations, and foundations listed on the following pages. You make the "Aha!" moments at the Institute happen. I am personally grateful for this and invite you to join us in one of these experiences to see first-hand the impact you have. On behalf of the Institute's staff and especially our visitors, families, and learners of all ages, thank you for embracing and sharing our commitment to making science exciting, entertaining, useful, relevant, and accessible to all.

SCHOOLS

At Cranbrook Schools, innovation is a community mindset that is focused on developing engaged learners who can creatively design and implement solutions for real-world problems. It is a continuous process that embraces varied instructional methodologies and learning environments to best personalize instruction for learners. Cranbrook's culture of innovation is driven by a commitment to excellence, quality, and integrity, and supports thoughtful risk-taking by our students. There were many exciting results of this commitment to innovation throughout the 2015-2016, and I would like to take this opportunity to share just a few.

In Cranbrook's robotics program, one of our Upper School robotics teams took third place in the World Robotics Olympics in Beijing, China. They qualified for that competition by tying for first place in the U.S. national championships. Several Middle School teams also participated in state, national, and international events. Robotics began 16 years ago at Cranbrook, and it now extends from Brookside to the Upper School. Robotics emphasizes meaningful problem-based learning, integration and application of knowledge, hands-on learning in cooperative groups, and demonstrated mastery of new learning in the areas of math, science, and technology.

At the Cranbrook Kingswood Middle School for Girls, a team of 18 students designed an experiment for a 3D-printed cube filled with super-absorbent polymers, comparing the dehydrated polymers after their exposure to microgravity to the control set up in their classroom. The students' experiment was one of only 23 to be included in the 2016 "Cubes in Space," program—a collaborative effort led by NASA's Langley Research Center and the Colorado Space Grant Consortium. Their experiment was launched on a sounding rocket from Wallops Island, Virginia in June and from a high-altitude balloon from New Mexico in August.

At the Cranbrook Kingswood Middle School for Boys, the students participated in the first annual Boat Design Project. Students worked collaboratively, applying lessons from math and science classes through the design thinking process. The project led the boys through the design, scale-model prototyping, and fabrication phases of creating seaworthy watercraft. At the culmination of the project in May, the boys tested their completed vessels in real life at a regatta held in the Williams Natatorium.

At Brookside, the new Innovation and Technology Lab (or "It" Center) has quickly become a hub for innovative problem-solving and creativity for many of Cranbrook's youngest students. The Center, a fully renovated space in Brookside's lower level, provides for activities designed to support student growth in creativity, collaboration, and problem solving with the aid of technology. Curriculum in the Center includes "Tinkering and Making," "Computational Thinking," "Traditional and Digital Manufacturing," and "Young Innovators"—where students engage in developing creative solutions to problems using elements of design thinking.

These examples of innovation and creativity, like so many others, were possible because of the generous support of the Schools graduates, parents, grandparents, friends, and everyone listed on the following pages. On behalf of all of us associated with Cranbrook Schools, thank you for your exceptional support!

Arlyce M. Siebert
Director of Cranbrook Schools

HORIZONS-UPWARD BOUND

At Horizons-Upward Bound, we focus on the basics of supporting our students in the core subjects of Reading, English, Mathematics, Science, and World Languages. But this year we have been able to add innovative and creative new teaching and learning strategies to our curriculum. In this and other areas I will describe below, HUB has used innovation to enhance our program delivery to underserved high school students from Detroit, Hazel Park, Hamtramck, Highland Park, and Pontiac.

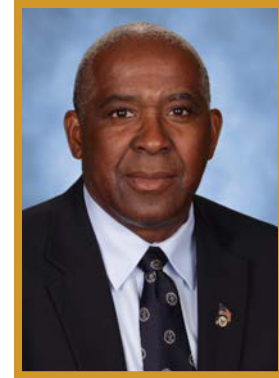

The new Blended Learning for Achievement in Mathematics (BLAM) initiative is a unique collaboration between HUB and Cranbrook Schools. BLAM is intended to strengthen student math skills and support the existing curriculum with innovative problem-based learning to deepen the students' engagement with and understanding of mathematics. Overall, 70% of the 80 HUB students who took both the placement test and final assessment showed improvement: 25% improved their scores by 50% or more; 24% improved by 20–49%; and 21% improved by 5–19%. BLAM's focus on critical thinking skills, instead of prior math knowledge, has challenged students to create their own approach to arriving at correct solutions. The practice has encouraged creativity and allowed discussion to form around a variety of approaches introduced by both students and faculty, resulting in exposure to and a better understanding of both familiar and new math concepts.

In 2015-2016, innovation at HUB also occurred outside the classroom. The HUB team routinely monitors the success of our graduates as they progress through college. Our recent evaluations have confirmed that, after four years in the program and more than 2,500 hours of structured learning experiences, HUB graduates are generally well-prepared academically for college work. However, we have also learned that our students lack some life skills experience that other college-age students have. To help remedy this gap, we have implemented two programs to provide “deeper learning” skills such as financial budgeting; time management; learning through experience, collaboration, and project-based opportunities; work-readiness traits such as social and business etiquette; and mastering skills for coping with the overall stress of college life. Some of the initiatives are as straightforward as learning to make healthy microwave meals and snacks or to sew on a button; others involve basic first aid, speed reading and comprehension building, or conflict avoidance and resolution. These deeper learning skills are not only useful for college but are skills that employers look for as well. Through this expansion of the HUB offerings, we are positioning our graduates for even greater success as they continue in higher education and life!

This past year, HUB's 50th, was an extraordinary one for the program. We celebrated its history and longevity, and the success of its more than 2,500 graduates. I am pleased to report that the future of Horizons-Upward Bound at Cranbrook is as bright as its past because of the generosity of the people and organizations listed on the following pages. So many friends—new and long-time ones—joined us in the celebration of HUB's 50th Anniversary. As we look forward to the next 50 years of empowering and enabling underserved students from Southeast Michigan to succeed in higher education and beyond, we are exceedingly grateful to those who have made our continued bright future possible. Thank you.

CENTER FOR COLLECTIONS AND RESEARCH

The Center for Collections and Research preserves and shares Cranbrook's world-class collections—our historic architecture, archives, and cultural properties—and shapes the stories that define the legacy of Cranbrook's people, places, and objects. While the care and management of these collections is central to our work, our innovative programs are our public face. Two of our signature events are the Edible Landscape dinners and Day Away bus trips, programs that use our history as their point of departure with the goal of both engaging new audiences and deepen the connection to Cranbrook of existing audiences.

In 2015-2016, the Center's fourth year of operation, we hosted two very successful Edible Landscapes dinners, presented in the Cranbrook House Library by two of Detroit's most innovative new chefs: Andy Hollyday from Selden Standard and Josh Stockton from Gold Cash Gold. The fall dinner was based around the flora and fauna that had been part of the historic Cranbrook landscape and the spring dinner was based on the food described by Shakespeare in his plays. For the second dinner we collaborated with St. Dunstan's Theatre Guild to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the first performance in our Greek Theatre. Before sitting down to a sumptuous five-course dinner, guests enjoyed a back-stage tour of the theatre and St. Dunstan's June production of A Midsummer Night's Dream (the reason for the Shakespeare theme) led by Daniel Dobrovich, Guest Director of St. Dunstan's production and Director of Theatre at Cranbrook Kingswood Upper School.

The Center also partnered with several Detroit organizations to present three sold-out Day Away programs exploring Cranbrook's connections with the greater metropolitan region. Inspired by the Center's Pewabic Pottery exhibition at Cranbrook Art Museum, the two spring tours took participants into Detroit to explore five of the most important (and dazzling) sites associated with the Pottery's history, including the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, the Detroit Public Library, and the home that Mary Chase Perry Stratton and her husband, the architect William Stratton, designed for themselves. Through these tours of public and private spaces with Pewabic Pottery significance, and in presentations by seven Pewabic experts, guests came away with a new understanding of the innovative work of Mary Chase Perry Stratton, and the important relationship our founder, George Booth, fostered with Pewabic Pottery here at Cranbrook.

The Center's innovative and creative exhibitions, lectures, programs, and publications would not be possible without the generous support of the individuals and organizations listed on the following pages. All of us associated with the Center are most grateful for the support of these donors who have provided us with the ability to expand its educational offerings. As Cranbrook's newest programmatic area, we hope everyone reading these pages will explore the Center's website <http://www.cranbrook.edu/center> for upcoming events and links to our blog and on-line resources. And thank you for your continuing support, whether it be financial, joining in one of our experiences, or both.

 CRANBROOK EDUCATIONAL COMMUNITY

Cranbrook Educational Community is not an institution that stands still. Each spring, we graduate nearly 300 students from our School, Horizons-Upward Bound, and the Academy of Art and new groups of students arrive each fall. Each year, new exhibitions are installed in the galleries of the Art Museum and Institute of Science, and new programs are offered through the Center for Collections and Research. Even the gardens around Cranbrook House change each year as new annuals are planted and older trees, bushes, or perennials are trimmed or replanted.

While these annual changes punctuate the rhythm of the academic and calendar years at Cranbrook, there are parts of our campus which change less frequently or less dramatically. For example, some of the buildings on the 319-acre grounds are over 100 years old, and even the most recent (the Girls Middle School and the Museum's Collections Wing) are now five years old. Similarly, the campus landscape includes trees planted by George and Ellen Booth a century ago as well as daffodil bulbs placed on Daffodil Hill near Kingswood within the last year.

In 2015-2016, the Community undertook a revision to its Master Plan, updating a scheme developed ten years before. This new plan, entitled Toward Cranbrook 2030, was produced by the team of Reed Hilderbrand (landscape architects), Utile (architects), and VHB (traffic and environmental engineers). While the plan was precipitated by the need to site as many as five new building programs on the campus, it is not bound to a single physical outcome.

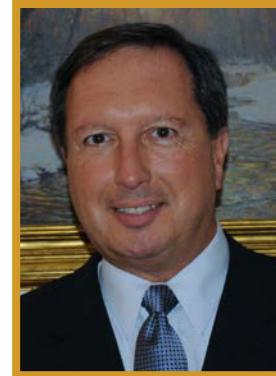

Cranbrook 2030 recognizes that evolving priorities may change the sequence of development and that needs envisioned today may require accommodation. Therefore, what the plan provides is five main objectives that will guide us as we implement Cranbrook 2030. Those objectives relate to the importance of campus landscape and a strategic landscape management plan; a refined circulation network for vehicles, pedestrians, and cyclists; a Cultural Common at the center of campus that enhances the visitor experience and protects our schools; an Upper School Athletics precinct that improves facilities and provides easy entry for the public; and a reaffirmation of Cranbrook House and Gardens as the cultural and historical heart of the Community.

Cranbrook 2030 was the product of a very inclusive and deliberative process over a fifteen-month period. Each board or committee at Cranbrook charged with responsibility for our programs or our physical assets was engaged in the information gathering and feedback loops. If you are interested in a copy, please contact my office and if you have any questions please get in touch with us.

Cranbrook continues to flourish and to look to the future because of the generous support of the many donors listed on the following pages who have supported our Community-wide initiatives. All of those associated with Cranbrook—students, parents, visitors, faculty, and staff—are exceedingly grateful to these individuals, corporations, and foundations for sustaining the Booth's dream for Cranbrook. Thank you.
